

A low-angle, wide shot of a city street during the 'golden hour' of sunset. The sun is a bright, glowing orb on the right side of the frame, casting a warm, golden light across the scene. The street is paved with asphalt and has white dashed lane markings. A white curb runs along the right side of the road. In the background, city buildings and streetlights are visible but heavily blurred, creating a bokeh effect. The overall atmosphere is serene and urban.
